MobiVisor in action for the management and security of mobile devices in order to protect sensitive customer data

How MobiVisor helps a bank to secure customer calls and the work in home office

Challenge

Like many other banks, Seebank produces a big mass of data which is used for daily business. These amounts of data have to be stored and secured, even if the amounts increase every year. Managing the data is a lot of work and the bank is in possession of a lot of highly private customer data that requires very careful handling.

As a consequence, employees' mobile devices have to be secured, too, because they are used to talk to customers about account activities, credits etc. Of course, no information of these conversations or confidential emails should leak to outsiders. Another requirement of Seebank is that all internet connections from employees' mobile devices should always be secure. The Seebank also aims to establish themselves as a modern employer that enables their employees to work from home. But to do this, a safe communication structure is needed.

Solution with MobiVisor

Seebank decided to establish an MDM in their company to solve all these challenges. MobiVisor provides them with the ideal infrastructure to do so:

With the MobiVisor extension Secure Mail, all emails are additionally secured and allow for information and documents to be sent to colleagues and customers in compliance to the GDPR. This does not only save time, but is also more eco-friendly than sending huge amounts of letters. Furthermore, Seebank now uses the MobiVisor Per-App-VPN to ensure that employees can use the internet safely. With this, employees have easy access to information and documents even when they are at an appointment at a customer's location.

Via MobiVisor it is generally possible to set up all apps and programs that can be used on employees' mobile devices – this is a big benefit for the employees too, since they can trust to always use the right apps without the risk of security breaches.
